

A new book (162pp, over 120 illustrations with 8 pages in colour) from the Cotteswold Naturalists' Field Club, covering:

- * The sources of the stone which characterise Cheltenham and other buildings in the surrounding area.
- * The history of the men who extracted and worked the stone.
- * How the stone was extracted under difficult conditions.
- * Examples of the buildings which were erected.
- * Industrial archaeology of some re-discovered underground quarries.
